Savings - Interest Details*

Your interest is calculated at the end of each day based on the day's end balance. It is calculated at the prevailing interest rate offered on your Mari Savings Account balance amount and credited the next day.

Calculation of interest for each day is based on the formula:

$(\text{Previous day balance in account} \times X\%) / (\text{Number of days in a year})$

Where X is the current prevailing interest rate based on your balance amount.

For the credited interest to be displayed in your account, it must reach a minimum of S$0.01 when rounded to the nearest two decimal places.

Generally, any difference in interest credited after rounding off to the nearest two decimal places will be considered as residual interest, which will then be carried forward to the next day. This could result in a slight difference in your interest credited each day.

To find out the interest that you are currently earning, you can log in to your MariBank app, and view it under your Balance Card.
