NOTES

1. Right of Abode in the UK

Having right of abode means you are allowed to live or work in the UK without any immigration restrictions. If the holder's nationality is shown as British citizen or if there is an observation confirming a 'right of abode' in the UK, then the holder of this passport can live or work in the UK. If the holder's nationality is shown as a British Overseas Territories citizen, a British Overseas citizen, a British subject, a British National (Overseas), or a British protected person, then the holder does not have the right of abode in the UK.

2. Immigration Gates

If you are a British citizen, and over 18 years of age (or from 12 years, if you are accompanied) you can use this e-Passport at automated border control gates. These gates are usually marked with this symbol . If the holder's nationality is shown as a British Overseas Territories citizen, a British Overseas citizen, a British subject, a British National (Overseas), or a British protected person then the holder will be unable to use the automated gates.

3. Consular Assistance Abroad

If you need consular assistance outside the UK you should get help from the nearest British Embassy or consulate. If there is no British Embassy or consulate in the country you should contact the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for advice. Consular assistance is not routinely provided to dual nationals in their other country of nationality. A person who has dual nationality may be subject to the laws of the other country. It is your responsibility to determine what responsibilities you may have with dual other country.

4. Customs

Holder's Responsibility

It is the responsibility of the passport holder to ensure that the passport is held securely and safely and that any loss, theft or destruction is reported to the local police and to HM Passport Office. If you find a British passport it should be returned to Freepost, HM Passport Office or in the UK, or via the nearest British Embassy or consulate overseas.

The passport remains the property of the Crown and can be cancelled at any time. A person may be subject to criminal prosecution if the passport is subject to any unauthorised use or activity by the holder or any other person.
