

PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

The role of a Teaching Assistant is to support children with learning difficulties, whether cognitive, SEMH (Social, Emotional, and Mental Health), language barriers, or any other complexities that interrupt their ability to learn. Recognizing that children have different learning needs and encouraging them to reach their full potential in a way that suits them best is key. Efficient collaboration with teachers not only enhances support for students but also provides opportunities to learn from the children themselves. Most importantly, understanding, open-mindedness, and flexibility are essential qualities in helping children become happy and confident learners.
